There is simply no other service like Heavy Shot Guide Service. Goose and Duck Smackers Guide Service | Fisher, AR(651) 755-1612Website | Facebook | Instagram Goose and Duck Smackers Guide Service Hunting snow geese during spring migration is quite a memorable event and one I highly recommend. It is especially exciting for those hunters who like to watch birds and enjoy wing shooting. However, if a person is new to the sport, there are often questions about what a spring snow goose hunt is all about. First, the spring snow geese hunt is the result of a 1999 Conservation Order designed to reduce the number of snow geese in North America. These birds nest in the tundra areas of Canada and are literally eating their food supply faster that it can replenish itself. Without any human intervention, the snow-covered population is on its way to a significant collapse. In an effort to give hunters as many benefits as possible to harvest significant numbers of birds, the Conservation Order was very liberal in their limitations. During spring migration, unplugged shotguns are allowed as well as electronic calls and motion lures. The states I know have very generous daily limits or no boundaries. Licenses must be obtained from the state being hunted, but are often often available at nominal cost. Even with all of the normal hunting restrictions thrown out the window, the program is only marginally successful. This is due to the fact that snow geese are quite intelligent, live to be over 20 years old and are hunted eight months of the year. Put these factors together and you have the makings for wary birds that do not mislead very well. Goose and Duck Smackers continues to provide some of the most intimate, knowledgeable and dedicated goose and duck hunting services in the state of Arkansas and provide an unforgettable experience to anyone visiting. Their dedication to knowing the birds means they are the most beautiful ducks and geese that the state has to offer. Goose Busters Guide Service | Almyra, AR(870) 672-1235Website | Facebook Goose Busters Guide Service While the rice farming country of east-central Arkansas is famous for duck hunting, it's also an important wintering ground for fewer snow geese. Each year the Arkansas delta attracts more than a quarter of a million of these birds, and the hunting season is long and the pocket limit is liberal. For the past eight years, Johnny Hoot Gibson of Almyra, Ark., has run the Goose Busters Hunting Club, which specializes in field hunting snow geese. Gibson accompanies about 80 days a season, and he recognizes clear patterns in terms of when these birds fly and where they will be. Again, the weather is the predominant factor in both cases. If the ground is not frozen, snow geese will feed in rice paddies. But when everything freezes, they go to winter wheat. So he stays mobile and follows this pattern in terms of where he spread my decoy. Snow geese normally feed in huge concentrations, and any disruption can cause them to shift to another field. To prevent this, Gibson hunts near a large feeding herd, but not close enough to it to keep the birds busy in leaving. As with ducks, the exception to this rule is a rain pushed through the front edge of a front. When a front moves by, it stirs the local geese up and gets them excited. And it can also bring in some new birds. So if you're blowing past a stormy, filthy front, and the wind is shifting north, you better be ready, because you're going to take some action. Big Creek Waterfowl Club | Wheatley, AR(901) 497-7381Website | Facebook | Instagram Big Creek Waterfowl Club Experience a true Southern tradition, Arkansas Duck Hunting! Duck hunting in Arkansas is world famous and has been on display at numerous open-air shows for many years and there is a reason! Duck hunting in Arkansas is the best in North America. Big Creek Waterfowl Club is located on an important flight path right in the middle of the world famous Mississippi flyway, the largest migration route in the world. Witness firsthand the many and different types moving through the Mississippi flight path. You will witness firsthand the many species that the Mississippi flight path has to offer, from Blue Wing Teal in to Green Wing teal, Gadwall, Pintail, Canvasback, Red Head, Shoveler, Ring Neck, Widgeon, and yes, the Mallard, all season long. Big Creek Waterfowl Club is blessed to be on both a great Duck and Goose migration route. From the beginning of November you will witness thousands and thousands of geese at Big Creek Waterfowl Club. Water, food and thousands of acres of equally excellent goose hunting are available to everyone. Many waterfowl clubs offer either duck or geese hunting, but at Big Creek, you get both. They hunt from comfortable pits and pop-up blinds in dry fields and the water's edge with different types of decoys. From goose shells, full bodies, rags, etc., basically the latest gear to ensure maximum success. The geese we harvest are Snows, Blues, Ross and Speckle Bellies. If you've never been on a distraction goose hunt, you'd better get ready, your life will never be the same again The lodges are right in the middle of where we hunt in the Hunter, AR area just north of Wheatley about 6 miles and east on Big Creek. Our lodges are adequate in space and includes a warm fireplace, large screen TVs with satellite, large outdoor covered deck area for sitting (when the weather permits), lounging, and just relaxing. Pluck-A-Duck Lodge | Wynne, AR(870) 588-5608Website | Facebook | Instagram Pluck-A-Duck Lodge When it comes to snow geese hunts, only a true professional can know how to navigate through the March to Mid-March migration, looking for those perfect birds. That's why Pluck-A-Duck Lodge equips all their hunting convoys with highly trained guides who take you across the vast amount of farmland and along those hidden inland roads to those special hunting spots you dream of. They have over 30,000 acres of private hunting land, and they're all at your disposal. That's not only more than most lodges in Arkansas can offer, but it's more than you know what to do with. We ask you to pack your bags, earplugs and your favorite shotgun. Take that plug on an extended tube. Bring many shells, because this season is no limits, no plugs, and the use of electronic calls. Only you are sure that our Pluck-A-Duck snow goose hunts will not disappoint. Since February to mid-March is considered prime time for conservation order hunts in Arkansas, we have federal mandate to reduce the ever increasing number of snow goose.
